

this morning

The Morning News, Tuesday, September 25, 1973

Page 12

Chesapeake's antiques sail on logs and grogs

By William Weathers
The Williams Housing Authority board last week refused to stop demolition of an abandoned factory site and Mayor St. Michaels' plan to build a new 25-building town house complex.

The citizens group wants to study the possibility of using the building, the former factory for a new use. For a new industrial use or for a new use.

During the factory's demolition, the authority contacted N. Edwards, Inc. for the 25 buildings will be demolished.

The factory building has been vacant for about two and a half years. The authority wants to demolish the factory and use the site for a new use.

They would see that all residential buildings be demolished. The authority would like to demolish the factory and use the site for a new use.

Robert L. Jones, representing the housing task force, said the old factory is "a viable use for the site."

Lewis M. Miller, a senior industrial staff member, said the old factory which has no utilities and no water supply is a "fine trap" and that he personally had no objection to the factory being demolished.

The commissioners also heard testimony from the former factory workers who said they had worked there for 10 to 15 years.

The commissioners also heard testimony from the former factory workers who said they had worked there for 10 to 15 years.

The commissioners also heard testimony from the former factory workers who said they had worked there for 10 to 15 years.

OFFSHORE HANGOUT — Log canoe crewmen, perched on spilingboards to keep the craft on an even keel, relax on a reach up the Miles River, off St. Michaels, Md. (DPT photo)

By William Weathers
The Williams Housing Authority board last week refused to stop demolition of an abandoned factory site and Mayor St. Michaels' plan to build a new 25-building town house complex.

The citizens group wants to study the possibility of using the building, the former factory for a new use. For a new industrial use or for a new use.

During the factory's demolition, the authority contacted N. Edwards, Inc. for the 25 buildings will be demolished.

The factory building has been vacant for about two and a half years. The authority wants to demolish the factory and use the site for a new use.

They would see that all residential buildings be demolished. The authority would like to demolish the factory and use the site for a new use.

Robert L. Jones, representing the housing task force, said the old factory is "a viable use for the site."

Lewis M. Miller, a senior industrial staff member, said the old factory which has no utilities and no water supply is a "fine trap" and that he personally had no objection to the factory being demolished.

The commissioners also heard testimony from the former factory workers who said they had worked there for 10 to 15 years.

The commissioners also heard testimony from the former factory workers who said they had worked there for 10 to 15 years.

The commissioners also heard testimony from the former factory workers who said they had worked there for 10 to 15 years.

2 tax aides deny getting break on their own problems

By Norma Lachman
Two state tax officials accused of past tax delinquencies deny they were allowed to close up their accounts in preferred loans before being forced to meet present obligations with the Division of Revenue.

The state said that they were allowed to close up their accounts in preferred loans before being forced to meet present obligations with the Division of Revenue.

The state said that they were allowed to close up their accounts in preferred loans before being forced to meet present obligations with the Division of Revenue.

The state said that they were allowed to close up their accounts in preferred loans before being forced to meet present obligations with the Division of Revenue.

The state said that they were allowed to close up their accounts in preferred loans before being forced to meet present obligations with the Division of Revenue.

The state said that they were allowed to close up their accounts in preferred loans before being forced to meet present obligations with the Division of Revenue.

The state said that they were allowed to close up their accounts in preferred loans before being forced to meet present obligations with the Division of Revenue.

The state said that they were allowed to close up their accounts in preferred loans before being forced to meet present obligations with the Division of Revenue.

WHA determined to raze factory despite protests

By William Weathers
The Williams Housing Authority board last week refused to stop demolition of an abandoned factory site and Mayor St. Michaels' plan to build a new 25-building town house complex.

The citizens group wants to study the possibility of using the building, the former factory for a new use. For a new industrial use or for a new use.

During the factory's demolition, the authority contacted N. Edwards, Inc. for the 25 buildings will be demolished.

The factory building has been vacant for about two and a half years. The authority wants to demolish the factory and use the site for a new use.

They would see that all residential buildings be demolished. The authority would like to demolish the factory and use the site for a new use.

Robert L. Jones, representing the housing task force, said the old factory is "a viable use for the site."

Lewis M. Miller, a senior industrial staff member, said the old factory which has no utilities and no water supply is a "fine trap" and that he personally had no objection to the factory being demolished.

The commissioners also heard testimony from the former factory workers who said they had worked there for 10 to 15 years.

The commissioners also heard testimony from the former factory workers who said they had worked there for 10 to 15 years.

The commissioners also heard testimony from the former factory workers who said they had worked there for 10 to 15 years.

Reflection — An egret rests itself on a pond at Bantley Hook National Wildlife Refuge near Smyrna. (Staff photo by Ron Dubicki)

lottery

N. J. Sunday writer: 0796

Newark OK's improvement program, capital budget

By David Price
Newark Mayor Joseph S. DiStefano last week approved a $17.5 million improvement program and a $17.5 million capital budget.

The former city employee has filed suit against council members, but dismissed. Although Mayor William M. Blum, Jr. and Councilman John H. Thomas proposed working with the city council to hold a referendum on the city's financial situation.

The city council voted 10-0 to approve the program and budget.

The program includes the construction of a new city hall, a new city library, and a new city auditorium.

The budget includes the purchase of new city vehicles, the purchase of new city equipment, and the purchase of new city furniture.

The program and budget are subject to a referendum on the city's financial situation.

The city council voted 10-0 to approve the program and budget.

The program includes the construction of a new city hall, a new city library, and a new city auditorium.

The budget includes the purchase of new city vehicles, the purchase of new city equipment, and the purchase of new city furniture.

The program and budget are subject to a referendum on the city's financial situation.

Gay activist's 'gut reaction'

By David Price
Newark Mayor Joseph S. DiStefano last week approved a $17.5 million improvement program and a $17.5 million capital budget.

The former city employee has filed suit against council members, but dismissed. Although Mayor William M. Blum, Jr. and Councilman John H. Thomas proposed working with the city council to hold a referendum on the city's financial situation.

The city council voted 10-0 to approve the program and budget.

The program includes the construction of a new city hall, a new city library, and a new city auditorium.

The budget includes the purchase of new city vehicles, the purchase of new city equipment, and the purchase of new city furniture.

The program and budget are subject to a referendum on the city's financial situation.

The city council voted 10-0 to approve the program and budget.

The program includes the construction of a new city hall, a new city library, and a new city auditorium.

The budget includes the purchase of new city vehicles, the purchase of new city equipment, and the purchase of new city furniture.

The program and budget are subject to a referendum on the city's financial situation.

Conrad plans Feb. vote on tax hike

By David Price
Newark Mayor Joseph S. DiStefano last week approved a $17.5 million improvement program and a $17.5 million capital budget.

The former city employee has filed suit against council members, but dismissed. Although Mayor William M. Blum, Jr. and Councilman John H. Thomas proposed working with the city council to hold a referendum on the city's financial situation.

The city council voted 10-0 to approve the program and budget.

The program includes the construction of a new city hall, a new city library, and a new city auditorium.

The budget includes the purchase of new city vehicles, the purchase of new city equipment, and the purchase of new city furniture.

The program and budget are subject to a referendum on the city's financial situation.

The city council voted 10-0 to approve the program and budget.

The program includes the construction of a new city hall, a new city library, and a new city auditorium.

The budget includes the purchase of new city vehicles, the purchase of new city equipment, and the purchase of new city furniture.

The program and budget are subject to a referendum on the city's financial situation.

2-year-old drowns near suburban home

By David Price
Newark Mayor Joseph S. DiStefano last week approved a $17.5 million improvement program and a $17.5 million capital budget.

The former city employee has filed suit against council members, but dismissed. Although Mayor William M. Blum, Jr. and Councilman John H. Thomas proposed working with the city council to hold a referendum on the city's financial situation.

The city council voted 10-0 to approve the program and budget.

The program includes the construction of a new city hall, a new city library, and a new city auditorium.

The budget includes the purchase of new city vehicles, the purchase of new city equipment, and the purchase of new city furniture.

The program and budget are subject to a referendum on the city's financial situation.

The city council voted 10-0 to approve the program and budget.

The program includes the construction of a new city hall, a new city library, and a new city auditorium.

The budget includes the purchase of new city vehicles, the purchase of new city equipment, and the purchase of new city furniture.

The program and budget are subject to a referendum on the city's financial situation.