

A Letter to Incoming Progressive/ Radical Students

SLS National Lawyers Guild

Summer 2021

A complement to the National NLG Disorientation Guide

In the coming year, you may find yourself seriously reconsidering why you came to law school.

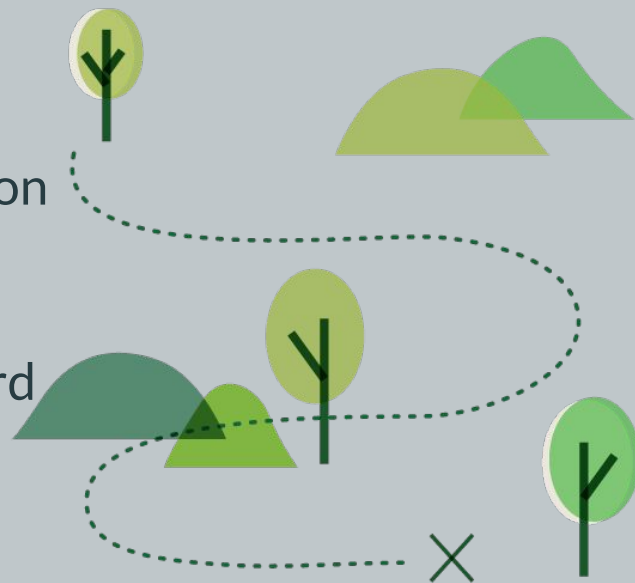

You may find yourself...

- feeling a resistance to the doctrinal materials;
- feeling outraged at the blatant racism/homophobia/xenophobia, etc. perpetuated by the law;
- and feeling confused at the tacit acceptance of all of the above by your peers and professors.

Unfortunately, we've all been there. If you find yourself trying to reconcile your decision to pursue law school and its hierarchies with your own anti-racist, anti-capitalist, etc. beliefs, hopefully this guide can be of some assistance.

Roadmap:

1. Our grievances with SLS and the legal profession
2. What keeps us at SLS, frameworks that inspire
3. Some activist histories and ongoingings at Stanford
4. Self and community care tips

Recognizing the overwhelming # of links—no pressure to read it all now or ever—but these are the kinds of resources that helped us find peace in the midst of 1L bullshit, so please feel free to return to them as needed.
(We will also host events related to them, so let us know if anything stands out for that.)*

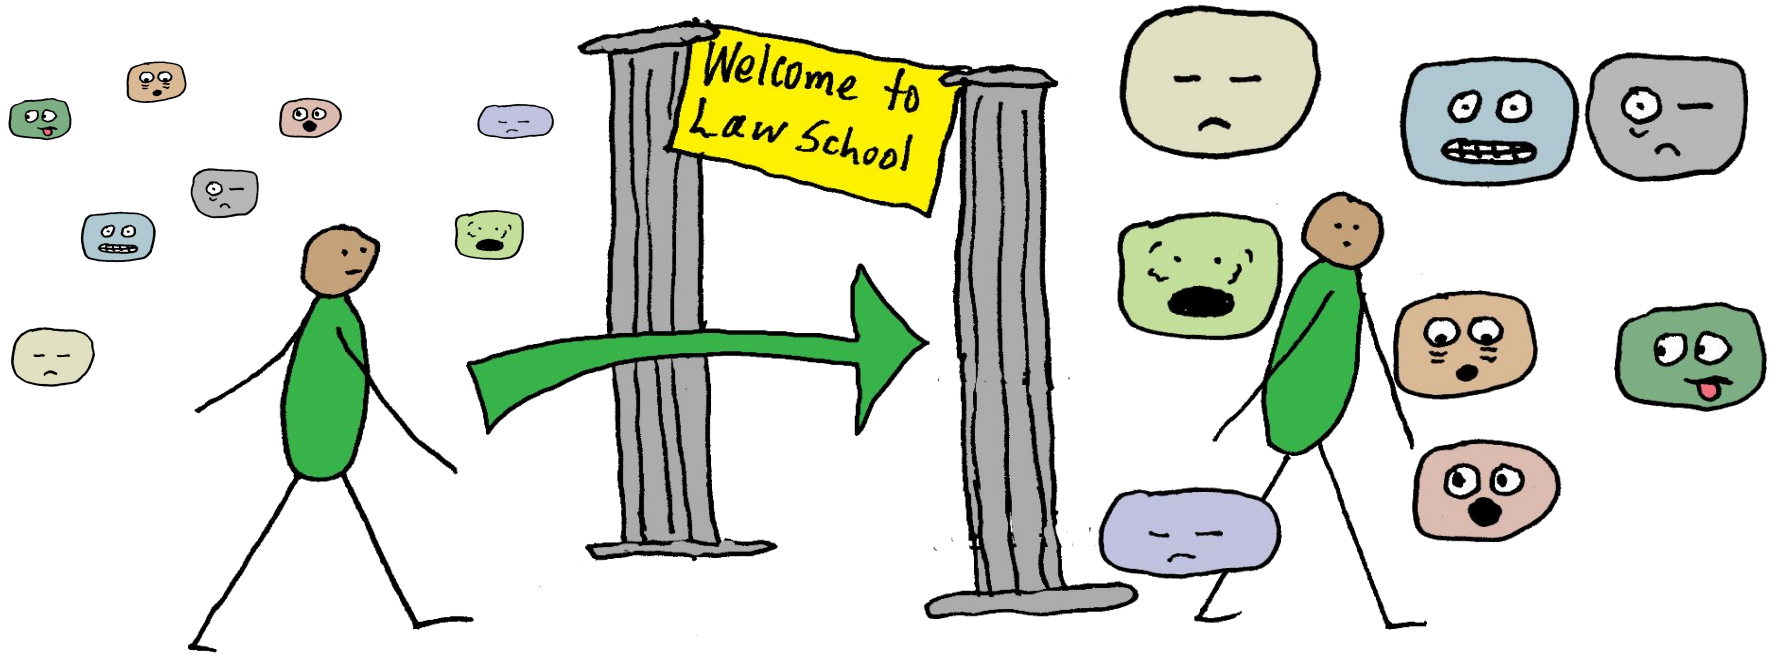

Welcome to SLS!

We hate to be the bearers of bad news, but law school is a pretty messed up place.

But it can also be a place where you can forge relationships of learning and growth—if you're able to consistently reject the bullshit that law school throws at you, from problematic ideologies (like cost-benefit obsession and focus on “national security” to serve xenophobic interests) to hierarchical pressures (like the push toward clerkships and firms).

What's up with the legal profession?

This slide and any with a “JO” stamp in the corner are adapted from a presentation Janelle Orsi from the Sustainable Economies Law Center did last year at SLS. Here are her [slides.]

Eeee, these numbers:

- 3.6x the rate of depression
- 2x the rate of substance abuse
- 36% of lawyers struggle with alcohol abuse
- 4th highest rate of suicide rate among professions
- 70% of Yale Law students surveyed by the Mental Health Alliance struggled with mental health issues during law school
- Associate attorney is the #1 unhappiest job in America

What Have We Found at SLS?

- ❑ Law school is a slow-moving, conservative place.
- ❑ Even with all the liberal faculty, the teaching style is very old-school, and every day you learn about how evil the US legal system is.
- ❑ Check out the NLG Radical Law Student Manual put together by NLG affiliates across the country for a look at how students can try to change law school practices and pedagogy.

What Have We Found at SLS? (Cont'd)

- ❑ Elite law schools exist to serve elite interests—upholding the patriarchal racial colonial capitalism that crushes people and planet.
- ❑ SLS is funded by and actively steers students to protect corporate interests advancing such projects.
 - ❑ Wanna unpack those buzzwords? Check out this lovely, extensive Building for Radical Lawyering reader that fellow law students put together.

Money, Status, Prestige

Everything in the legal profession is extremely hierarchical, and SLS is no exception.

Get ready for:

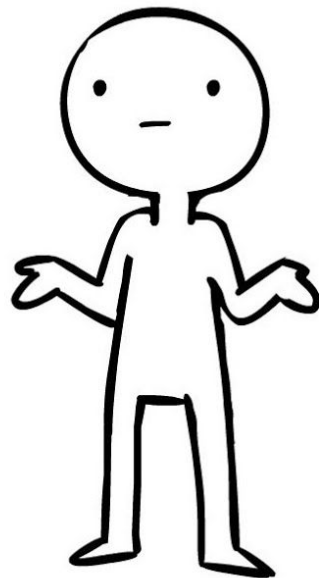

- Grade grubbing + gunnering
- Thinking that better at means better than
- Applying for things constantly, like classes and activities (cuz we stan the meritocracy)
- Feeling like every decision from jobs, clinics, classes, journals, etc. is a reflection of where you are on a hierarchy and determinative of the rest of your life

And Slowly.... Learning How Not to Give a Fuck

So Why Are We in Law School?

Sometimes we're not really sure...

And we'd encourage everyone to think hard about whether/why the social justice work they want to do requires a JD... especially given how demobilizing debt is and how terrible law school can be.

BUT! You're here now, so let's make the best of it.

- ❖ Read about "Public Interest Drift" here and develop strategies and community if you want to avoid it~

What's the Relationship between Law and Social Change?

- ❖ Well, it depends on what kind of change you want. If you want transformative change, a court or lawsuit can't deliver that. It will take mass mobilization and robust movement building. Lawyers are not the solution; people power is.
 - HIGHLY RECOMMEND checking out Dean Spade's resources on the role of lawyers in social movements. We love Dean. So much so that we invited him to talk at SLS just a few months ago (link to recording). Here's the article form if you prefer.
- ❖ So the question becomes: How can lawyers be in relationship with social movements?

Movement Lawyering!

(which has a long history and goes by many names, including rebellious lawyering, community lawyering, and radical lawyering)

There's so much to learn and explore about this approach:

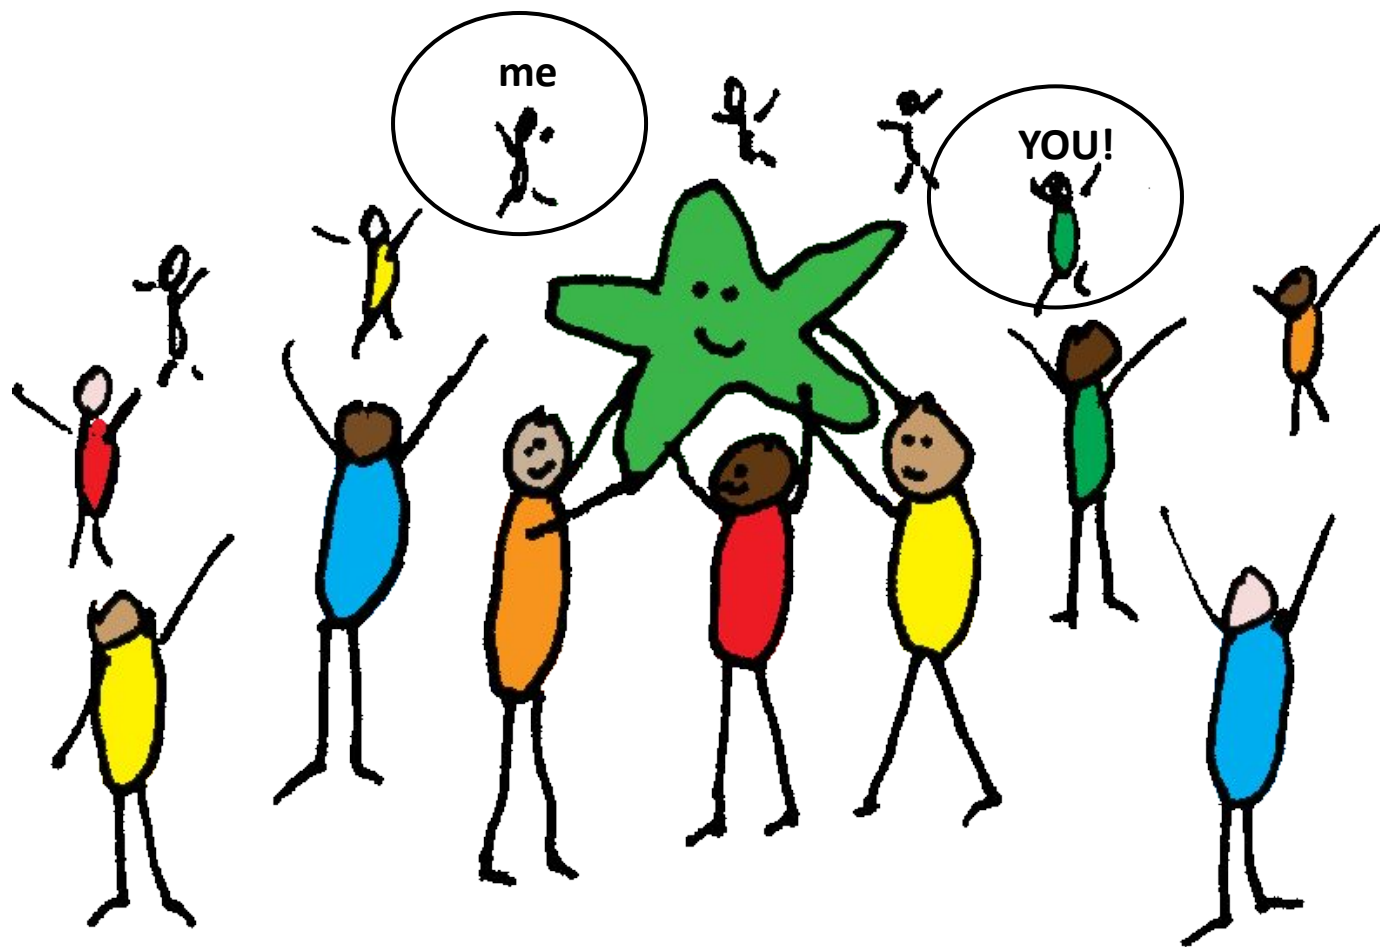

- ❖ How can you remain accountable to organizers on the ground most impacted by intersecting oppressions?
- ❖ How can you defer to the needs of the social movement fighting for transformative change instead of co-opting or selling out the movement as lawyers often do?

Ways to Practice Movement Lawyering

- ❖ Just showing up consistently in radical organizing spaces. Being in deep relationships, and not assuming you have all the answers because you know some law.
 - Resist how SLS can impair your willingness to take nontraditional paths.
- ❖ There are few legal jobs that will pay you to undermine capitalism. (Although there are a few, and SLS grads have disproportionate access to them.)
 - Don't expect to be paid for all the movement work you do!
 - Maintain a political home outside of your job.

(More) Ways to Practice Movement Lawyering

- ❖ Bringing your full self to social movements, recognizing that the movement needs cooks, artists, care workers, agitators, healers, financial experts, etc.
 - Bring all the hats you have!
- ❖ There are many strategies that movement lawyers take. To name a few:
 - protest defense, public records requests, participatory defense, policy drafting, know your rights trainings, and affirmative litigation
 - The movement needs all kinds of lawyers!

Movement Lawyering Resources:

- ❑ Here's a curated resource guide that an SLS NLG subgroup put together earlier this year!
 - ❑ Here's a video of the incredible movement lawyer Amanda Alexander speaking at SLS last year.
 - ❑ Here are some syllabi on the topic:
Building 4 Rad Lawyering
Movement Law Lab Founder Guide
Columbia Law School Syllabus
-

We love radical solidarity!

Movement lawyering is not the only framework that inspires us, but radical social movement struggle is often the source of the political frames that resonate with us.

Some Inspiring Movement Demands

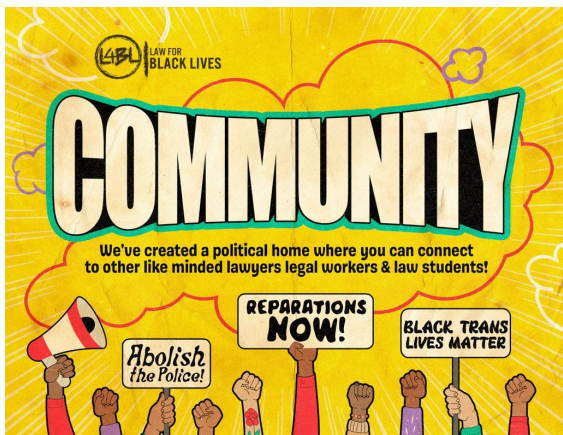

1. 8 to abolition
2. The Movement for Black Lives' Vision for Black Lives and Red, Black, and Green New Deal
3. A People's Orientation to a Regenerative Economy
4. Movement Generation's Just Transition: From Banks and Tanks to Cooperation and Caring

Helpful background:

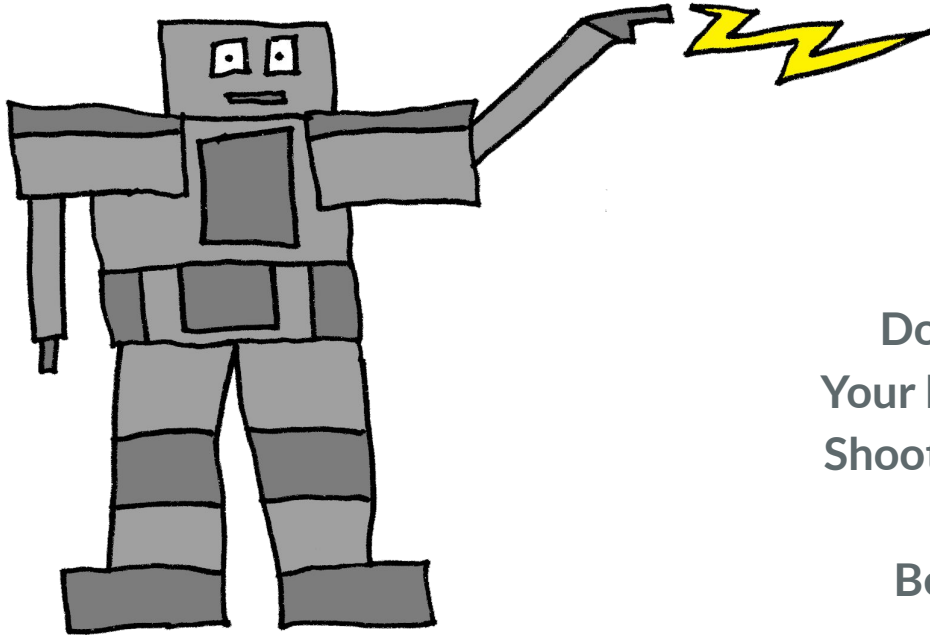

- A cartoon zine that introduces “Racial Capitalism and Prison Abolition”
- The incredibly moving essay by Robin D.G. Kelley, “Finding The Strength To Love And Dream”

Lovely Legal Communities To Plug Into:

1. Join the national movement lawyering / racial justice network, Law for Black Lives
 - a. Explore ways of being an abolitionist lawyer—e.g. as a public defender, organizer, or providing mutual aid to incarcerated folks.
 2. Learn about the solidarity economy and its lawyers who empower collective stewardship of housing, land, work, food, etc.
 3. Learn about Just Transition Lawyering through its up-and-coming institute
 4. Follow the progressive legal academia movement, Law and Political Economy
 5. Join the National Lawyers Guild!
-

In the legal profession, domination is supreme.

Be competent.
Be knowledgeable.

Be confident.

Be perfect.

Control outcomes.

Don't lose. The stakes are high.

Your best will never be good enough.

Shoot lightning from your fingertips.

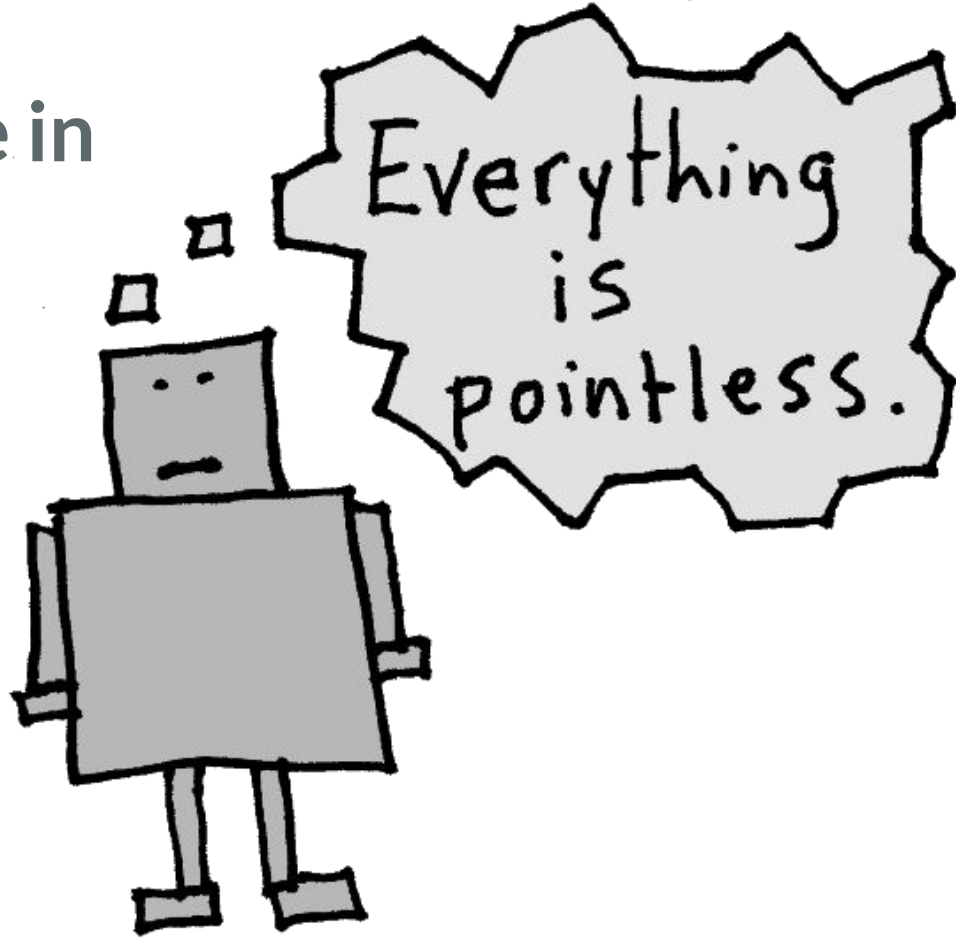

Crush the opponent.

Be better than everyone else.

More slides from [Janelle Orsi's presentation.
Her reflections on law school and how she's shifted gears.]

This was me in law school:

This is belonging and liberation.

Some Saturday morning cartoons:

From Sustainable Economies Law Center, generally:

- Nurturance Lawyering: How to Bring Connection and Healing To Our Work in Challenging Times (30 min cartoon)
- From Dominance Lawyering to Nurturance Lawyering (article)
- Join this community: www.Law4EconomicDemocracy.org
- Three Legal Principles for Rebuilding the Commons (article)
- Legal Structures for Economic Transformation (1 hour cartoony workshop)
- Visual Guide to Decommodifying the Law
- Legal structures for social transformation (short article)
- Practicing Law in the Sharing Economy (book)
- Law as Commons (5 min cartoon)
- The Legal Roots Of Resilience (4 min cartoon)
- How octopuses can inspire legal documents
- Law Center teach-ins playlist
- Black Women Lawyers Matter (interview series)

Radical real estate law videos:

- The History of Land Grabs and How to Fight Back (webinar)
- Radical Homeownership (Part 1 webinar)
- Legal Tools for Radical Homeownership (Part 2 webinar)
 - Link to Slideshow
- The Pathologies of Homeownership (short cartoon)
- UnSelling MamaEarth: Povertyskolaz Teach How To Build A Homeless People's Solution to Homelessness (webinar)
- Liberating Land Use: How Zoning Promotes Cultural Genocide and White Supremacy & How We Fight Back (webinar)
- Permanently protecting community assets from sale (short cartoon workshop)

Stepping Back...

Some Context about Stanford University:

- Stanford sits on Ramaytush Ohlone ancestral land which is currently stewarded by the Muwekma Ohlone people.
 - Consider paying your Shuumi Land Tax to the Sogorea Te' Land Trust, and/or your Yunakin Land Tax to the Association of Ramaytush Ohlone (and see this exciting ongoing effort).
- Stanford has a lot of issues...
 - Flip through this Disorientation Guide put together by S.L.A.P. (students for the liberation of all people) to read about its colonial history, its beloved Hoover Institution while the MLK Institute sits in a trailer, refusal to divest its endowment, entanglements with militarism and police, and homogenous faculty.
 - Oh, and Leland Stanford was a virulent racist robber baron, and the university spawned a destructive tech sector driving inequality throughout the Bay Area (and nation).

But activism
abounds at Stanford and at SLS!

Check Out:

[Abolish Stanford's logo]

- This fascinating virtual library exhibit on Stanford's history of activism.
- The booklet explaining the powerful "Racism Lives Here Too" movement at SLS in 2018.
 - ◆ Last year, 1Ls led a follow on "White Supremacy Lives Here Too" campaign, after the January 6th insurrection.

Get Involved:

★ On Campus—

- Abolish Stanford (abolitionist organizing)
- Stanford Solidarity Network (grad student organizing)
- Students for Workers Rights (campus worker organizing)

★ In the Area—

- San Francisco Bay Area NLG Chapter (become a member!)
- Silicon Valley Democratic Socialists of America
- Critical Resistance Oakland
- South Bay Mutual Aid (and support Tha Hood Squad and Feed the Block SJ)
- PenPal with Black and Pink (letter-writing to LGBTQ incarcerated people)

(a much abbreviated list)

Stepping Back Even Further...

There is so much more to you & life than law school

Self-Care/Community-Care ideas to consider, but no pressure:

- ★ Say “no.” You do NOT have to do everything, including anything on this list
 - You will absolutely be fine if you skim or skip readings. You’ll be fine if you opt out.
- ★ You will probably care more about grades than you want to... develop strategies to remind yourself: grades do not measure your intelligence, legal learning, or ability to help people
- ★ Go outside. Walk/run/hike/bike/sit...but soak up some sunshine & trees
- ★ Remember your value is soooo much greater than your identity as a student
- ★ You are NEVER alone—your peers are in it with you and want to support you <3
- ★ Read for fun, even if it’s just 15 minutes before bed set aside to read a novel
 - Netflix is also awesome
- ★ Connect with non-law school friends/family
- ★ Dogs (or cats)
- ★ Reach out to help and be helped!
- ★ Volunteer somewhere that has nothing to do with law
- ★ Make time for therapy (or whatever form of mental health practices work for you!)

Say hi to us! We'd love to chat :)

Some people who helped put this together.
Feel free to reach out with any and all questions or feedback!

- Mohit Mookim (he/him, [REDACTED] 2L)
- Jacob Maddox (he/him, [REDACTED] 2L)
- Leanna Lupin (she/her, [REDACTED] 2L)
- Seamus Guerin (they/them, [REDACTED] 2L)

- Raisa Reed (she/her, [REDACTED] 2L)
- Paola Méndez (she/her, [REDACTED] 2L)
- A.D. Sean Lewis (he/they, [REDACTED] 2021 grad)

... or just join NLG and keep hanging out with us ;)

(you'll also find aligned folks at Stanford Critical Law Society and Law & Political Economy, as well as the affinity groups)